Drawing.
IN consequence of the drawings of the New York Literature and the North and South Carolina Lotteries having been inadvertently announced to take place on the same day, we are under the necessity of postponing the North and South Carolina drawing for a few days only. The avidity with the citizens have purchased, and the time now appointed for drawing not interfering with any other Lottery, we have the pleasure of informing the public that it will positively take place at FAYETTEVILLE on Wednesday the 20th December next.

ON THE CULTURE OF THE POTATO.

Frederick county, Va. Sept. 27, 1826.

Mr. Skinner—Much has been written in your valuable paper, upon the cultivation of the Irish potato. As every thing relating to this valuable root is worth attention, I give you the practice of Mr. Heflebower, living near me, which I have adopted with complete success this season. He selects the poorest spots in his field, ploughs them well in November or December, and in the month of March plants his potatoes in drills two feet apart and two inches deep; then covers the whole with wheat or other straw, from eight to twelve inches thick, fifteen will not be too thick, for the potatoes will make their way through. This keeps the ground cool, and moist, and saves the labor of ploughing and weeding, and greatly improves the land. Mr. Heflebower last year made an abundant crop, whilst every other person in this neighborhood failed. To him they have been indebted the last spring for seed potatoes for miles round.

Yours, &c. A. B.

Sewing Silk.—We yesterday saw a box of the most elegant sewing silk, of the first quality, containing fifteen hundred skeins, which was manufactured in the family of Jabel Ingraham, Esq., at his farm in Seekonk, the present season.

The industry of the females in the interior of New England, cannot be appreciated without being seen. Farmers' daughters are always industriously employed in plaiting straw, making pies, weaving, spinning, or, as in the present instance, manufacturing silk.—N. Y. Advocate.

Among the many improvements daily making in our country, the building lately erected in Baltimore by Mr. Barnum, in conjunction with two other individuals, at an expense rising $130,000, may be worthy of notice. It is four stories high, exclusive of the basement story of eleven feet, fronting 120 feet on Calvert street. The main building is 50 feet deep, with two wings 133 feet, fronting on two other streets, besides a building in the rear. It contains, exclusive of the basement story, 172 rooms, including a dining room 86 feet in length and 30 in width, and above that, a saloon of equal extent; the whole splendidly lighted with gas.

Judgment of the Areopagus.—The decisions of the Areopagites of Athens, have long been famous for their wisdom. The learned Phocius, in his Bibliotheque, expatiates with delight on one decision, which shews that it was a wisdom tempered with an admirable spirit of humanity. The Areopagites were assembled together on a mountain, with no other roof than the canopy of heaven. A sparrow, pursued by a hawk, flew into the midst of them for refuge; it took shelter in the bosom of one of them, a man naturally of a harsh and repulsive disposition, who, taking hold of the little trembler, threw it from him with such violence that it was killed on the spot. The whole assembly were filled with indignation at the cruelty of the deed; the author was instantly arraigned as an alien to that sentiment of mercy so necessary to the administration of justice, and, by the unanimous suffrages of his colleagues, was degraded from the senatorial dignity which he had so much disgraced.—Wilkins' Anecdotes.

Strength of Sword-Fish.—During the passage of the Sarah Ward, West Indiaman, from Jamaica, her crew felt a smart shock, as if the ship had struck on a rock, and it was expected that she would leak. No leak, however, occurred; and on her arrival in the West India Docks, a short time back, when her cargo was taken out, it was found that she had been struck by a sword-fish near the keel. Such was the extraordinary force of the animal, that its spike had penetrated through the copper, through the plank, and had gone three inches into a hogshead of sugar lying at the bottom of the vessel. The Sarah Ward has been obliged, in consequence, to go into a dry dock for repair.

Modesty.—It was a question, who had spoken in the happiest manner of modesty. A French author calls it the shadow of a noble mind. St. Bernard styles it the jewel of manners, the sister of chastity, the guardian of reputation, the portion of all purity. Diogenes was a cynic philosopher, and therefore may be supposed to express himself coarsely; but what description can be more delicate, than when he called a blush the colour of virtue!

An Irish schoolmaster has advertised to keep a Sunday school twice a week, Tuesdays and Thursdays. An English magistrate sometime ago declared his intention of holding his quarter sessions monthly.

Adversity is like the period of the former and the latter rains—cold, comfortless, unfriendly to man and to animal; yet from thence come the flower and the fruit, the date, the rose, and the pomgranate.

We understand that a Board for the Examination of Midshipmen whose warrants bear date in the year 1818, will assemble at the Navy Yard in New York, on Monday, the 20th inst. Commodore Chauncey will preside.—Nat. Int.

New York, Nov. 18.

Five Boys were tried in the Sessions on Thursday, under several indictments for burglary. The eldest was but a little turned of fourteen. In the box they pleaded guilty to the charges, and confessed having been engaged in no less than twenty-six offences of the kind, chiefly on stores in this city.—They had robbed the office of Messrs. Allens by climbing the fence of the yard, taking away a large sum of money in bills, a great amount of which were counterfeit.—The most equitable dispensation of the spoils seemed to have been made on all occasions, as they divided the property stolen into equal lots. The ringleader (Horne) is a prodigy of precocious cunning. He it was, who reconnoitred the ground, pointed out the enterprize to his companions, and led them on in their depredations. Their thefts were effected mainly, by getting into new buildings, (and in one instance by penetrating into an old deserted tenement,) snd thus gaining access to the yards or out houses of the stores designated for robbery. Many of the stores were entered by crossing the roofs of buildings and going down the scuttle. The examination of these lads, taken in the Police office, is one of the most curious documents we have seen, and displays a degree of juvenile craft seldom if ever equalled. These same lads confessed that they were in Philadelphia a few months since, where they committed several burglaries. The greatest wonder in the whole affair appears to be, that such perfect harmony should have existed among this gang of striplings.—American.

There are upwards of 80 lines of stages that arrive and depart from Boston. They average 1200 departures and arrivals in one week in that city.

There are 50 mills in Massachusetts for the manufacture of writing and printing paper. They manufacture a year 200,000 reams of paper and consume 18,000 tons of rags.

In the State of New York, there are more mills than in Massachusetts. The value of the paper made in Massachusetts is estimated at $700,000, that in New York at more than a million.

Scraps from late London papers.

A baker named Hall, of Middle-street, Brighton, has the following useful notice over his shop window:

"This is the only shop in Brighton,

A woman named Hornet was bound to keep the peace, on Wednesday, for horning Mr. Harmer.

Persons may now go from Bristol to Cork for one shilling and sixpence! A few years since, the passage was three guineas.

Effects of Passion.—On Saturday evening one James Jackson, of Blakely, near Manchester, had a violent altercation with his wife about some beef, and whilst eating it he was choked. On the inquiry before Mr. Milne, the Jury found a verdict—"Accidentally choked."

Another instance of religious fanaticism has recently occurred at Vitrilla, in Italy, where a father has destroyed his three children to obtain for them an earlier admission into Paradise. There appears to have been nothing in the conduct of the father to excite a suspicion of his sanity, and the atrocious act would seem to have sprung entirely from religious phrenzy.

Race against a Coach.—A groom, of the name of Edwards, was matched to run, on Saturday morning, Nov. 8, eighteen miles in less time than the Bath Regulator coach. The coach performed the eighteen miles, changing twice, in two hours and eight minutes. The pedestrian did his task with great ease, in five minutes less than two hours.—[An. of Sporting.

On the 10th of December, a bay horse, the property of a gentleman in the borough, started to trot, in harness, twelve miles in 50 minutes, for 200 sovereigns, and won cleverly by a minute and a half. The American roan started on the same ground, to do one mile in three minutes and six seconds, upon the trot, for 50 sovereigns, and won, with two seconds to spare.—Ib.

Irish Warranty—a moral distinction. An Irish horse-dealer sold a fine blood mare, warranting her without fault. The purchaser, on her being sent home, found upon examination, that the sight of her eyes was quite gone. Next day he waited upon the dealer, desired that she might be taken back, and the purchase money returned, reminding the seller that he had declared the mare to be without fault. "To be sure, my dear, I did," replied Paddy; "blindness is not the poor creature's fault, but her misfortune."—Ib.

To preserve Beef sweet and tender throughout the year.—For one hundred weight of Beef prepare the following:—4 quarts of coarse Salt, made fine; 4 pounds of Brown Sugar; 4 ounces of Saltpetre. Mix the articles well together; then rub your Meat with it, and pack closely in the barrel—sufficient pickle will soon be made in the cask by this process. By no means use any water, as it will spoil the Meat when the weather becomes warm. If at any time a scum rise on the barrel, skim it off, and sprinkle into it a little fine salt, which will preserve the pickle. Some persons, fearing their Beef will be injured in warm weather, take out the pickle and boil it. This is wrong; as it will harden the Beef, and entirely change its flavor.

FOREIGN.

Washington, Nov. 24.

The following article affords some color to the report that a movement is going forward to clothe the Liberator with dictatorial powers. It does not appear, however, to be proposed with his knowledge:

"By Guayaquil papers to the 29th of August, it appears that at a meeting held in Guayaquil on the 28th of August, it was resolved—1st. That the exercise of the sovereignty should be devolved upon Bolivar, the father of his country: That the Liberator, being invested with dictatorial power, should take charge of the destinies of the Republic: That he shall call a Grand Columbian Convention to fix the Constitution of the Republic: That a copy of the foregoing resolutions should be transmitted to his Excellency: That all the departments of the Republic should be invited to follow the example of Guayaquil: and That, until His Excellency should arrive and take the Dictatorship, the authorities of Guayaquil should remain the same, and in the same state as before."

From the Boston Gazette.

The Greeks.—We have conversed with Mr. Miller, who visited Greece about two years ago, under the patronage of the Greek Committee of Boston; and the account he gives of the destitute and suffering condition of that oppressed people, is most appalling. It confirms the statement given in the papers for some time past, of their privations and distresses. The women and children as well as the soldiers suffered severely during the siege of Missolonghi; and so did those, afterwards, who escaped. Many chose death rather than be captured. They deprecated above all other evils, the falling into the hands of their cruel and unfeeling enemies. The wants of most of the inhabitants of the Morea are extreme; and those captured are treated in a most brutal manner. In Attica and Ætolia, the people are in a most destitute condition. But nothing will induce them to submit to their cruel oppressors. They are entirely devoted to free themselves from the Turkish yoke, or to be sacrificed in self-defence.—They do not fear death—it is only the power of the infidel foe which they dread.

Mr. Miller says that provisions would be as acceptable to them as men or arms.—Tho' they are not in regular disciplined armies, they unite and fight bravely when the enemy approaches; but that it is difficult to form and keep up a regular standing army. He thinks, if the Porte is otherwise occupied, as may be the case in a war with Russia, or the present difficulties with the Janisaries, that the Greeks will soon be able to recover from their suffering situation, and be free and prosperous. Mr. M. is a very intelligent man, and his opinions are entitled to full credit. He went to Greece from honorable and disinterested views—and he will always have the satisfaction to reflect, that he labored and suffered in behalf of that much injured people.

English News.—We copy the following paragraph from a late number of the London Traveller:

A barber of Philadelphia, who to the age of 62 years, had only exercised his profession, has invented a most curious marine clock. It is in the form of a high tower, and marks the hours by cannon shots, equal in sound to those of a forty-eight pounder.—Steam alone has been employed in this machine. Unfortunately, in trying it, by the twelfth stroke, there was not a whole square of glass in the town. He was condemned to pay the damages, but not being able, he has been committed to goal provisionally.

We suspect this "high" clock "tower," is the one which stands somewhere between the city and Fair Mount, which the Philadelphians have always mistaken for a shot tower, and which Gov. Shultz, on his first visit to Philadelphia, is said to have thought "an amazing high chimney for so small a house!" We are glad to have it in our power to remark, moreover, from actual observation, that if the twelfth stroke of the barber's clock broke every square of glass in that city, it has all been very promptly replaced. We did not observe a broken window in the whole city.—N. Y. Com. Adv.

Education.—A public examination lately took place in London of eight young persons, half of each sex, and of the same age, who had been educated for the last three years after two methods, one by the ordinary method of teaching, as formerly adopted in all popular schools, and the other by a new method of questions, without answers, called the interrogative system, invented and introduced by Sir Richard Phillips.—There were about sixty schoolmasters and governesses present, and nearly two hundred heads of respectable families. The books used by each in their studies were arranged before them for reference; and then, of two hundred questions, in popular branches of knowledge, put to the four on the old system, they collectively answered but thirty-three correctly; while, of the same questions, the four pupils under the new system, answered one hundred and fifty-six correctly, and forty-four with slight errors. The superiority of the new system over the old one may, therefore, be considered as six to one, independently of the greater facility which it confers in writing, spelling, and grammar, which was made evident by the time employed. The questions in each case were spontaneously given in writing by the company, and answered in writing, yet the answers to the thirty-three questions employed two hours and a half, and the one hundred and fifty-one answers but three hours and five minutes, or less than a minute each. It seemed like inspiration, and drew forth peals of applause from the enlightened company assembled.

From Professor Olmsted's Report on the Geology of the State.

CONCLUDING REMARKS.

Although I cannot pretend to have offered any thing more than a sketch of the Geology of North Carolina from the Ocean to the mountains, yet it is hoped and believed that enough has been developed, to convince men of science that the field here presented to the Geologist, is far more rich and ample than has generally been supposed. I should feel inclined to risk the assertion, that no part of the United States, perhaps no part of the world, appears to be stored with a greater variety of useful minerals; nor is the mineralogy of No. Carolina deficient in curious and splendid productions. It has however until recently been the impression that North Carolina contained hardly any object of interest in Geology or Mineralogy—that her surface was chiefly a sandy plain, where the mineralogist would meet with as few of his favorite productions, as among the waves of the ocean. Accordingly, among the various localities of minerals enumerated in elementary or systematic works on this science, we hardly ever find the name of North Carolina; and a distinguished mineralogist of our own country replied to a traveller, who was about to pass this way, and inquired "what materials he should meet with," that "he would find nothing here of any interest." A short residence in the State was sufficient to convince the writer, that its mineralogy, so far from being devoid of interest, was peculiarly rich and diversified: and he was led to reflect on the reasons why it had been so generally underrated. They appear to him to be the following:

1. Until recently, no professed mineralogist has ever resided in the State, and such travellers as had any pretensions to the science, have usually passed rapidly through the State and in directions parallel to that of our geological formations, and therefore under circumstances much less favorable to observation than those afforded by the opposite direction (from east to west) which would cross the strata.

2. But the face of the country every where eastward of the mountains, is marked by this strong peculiarity—that the rocks are not, as in most other countries, particularly N. England, exposed on the surface, but are very generally concealed by a thick covering of Clay and Sand, and appear only in the beds of rivers. Thus a traveller might cross the Great Slate Formation (which for its variety and the elegance of its productions, is not surpassed probably, by a similar formation elsewhere) and still see few ledges of rocks or precipices, and would observe the surface to be so generally unobstructed, that he might fancy himself to be journeying over an alluvial district. In the neighborhood of Salisbury and Charlotte, the surface is for the most part occupied by a deep soil, with scarcely a rock to impede the plough; and yet this whole region is based on granite, which lies only a few feet below the surface.

Whence has arisen this peculiarity in the face of the country in this region?—Whence is derived that deep deposit of sands and clays, which have partially filled up the valleys, worn down the precipices, and even covered the hills, so as almost entirely to conceal the rocks of the country? The appearance is such as to suggest the idea, that after the rocky formations were all completed, there came over the whole a deluge of waters, depositing so large a sediment as to conceal almost entirely the original face of nature. A much more probable supposition however, is, that this superficial covering has resulted from the decomposition of the rocks themselves. The principal difficulty which attends this supposition is, to account for the great depth of the covering, or to assign a sufficient reason why it should be so much deeper here than it is in other countries, where the same sorts of rocks are found, but remain for ages without decomposition. The following arguments appear to me both to establish the truth of the supposition, and to account for the unusual extent to which the process of decomposition has proceeded. The rocks of this country eastward of the mountains, very generally exhibit a strong tendency to decomposition. This fact is observable not only in those rocks which compose the principal formations, but also in many individual specimens. Thus we meet with many examples of small masses lying on the surface which we should take for red ochre, but on breaking them we find within one of the hardest silicious stones, called greenstone. Hornstone, another very hard mineral which abounds in this state, is usually found incrusted with a whitish coat, which has resulted from a decomposition of the exterior; and this process has in some instances proceeded so far, that entire veins of hornstone have passed into the state of fine white infusible claystone. On breaking the small masses of which these veins of clay are composed, we may occasionally find pieces which exhibit in the centre a portion of the original hornstone. The granite rocks of this country manifest, in most cases, the same tendency to decay. We may often see, in deep gullies, a shelly kind of granite, composed of grains loosely cohering, and exhibiting the work of decomposition still going on, even at the depth of ten feet or more from the surface—and in all the western counties, whose geology we have examined, the granite rocks, with a few exceptions, contain a large proportion of feldspar, which is constantly decomposing into white clay and destroying the texture of the rock. The abundant proportion of this substance will account for the decay of the granite rocks: and the remarkable diffusion of iron, particularly in the state of pyrites, among most of the other rocks, especially those of the slate formation, will suggest a reason for the disintegration of these.

That the superficial covering which conceals most of the rocks of the middle sections of North Carolina has resulted from the decomposition of the rocks themselves, and has not been transported from abroad, is further evident from the correspondence observable between the soils of particular districts, and the earth, which we see actually resulting from the decomposition of the rocks in the vicinity. Thus over those shelly granite rocks before mentioned, we find a soil of coarse sand which is generally sterile; and over the slate formation we find a stiff red clay, very similar to that which we observe incrusting those rocks of the districts which are now in the progress of decomposition. The 'red land' and the 'grey land' of Orange county are well defined sections, corresponding with distinct geological formations, the former covering the great slate formation, and the latter covering granite and sandstone.*

It will be kept in mind that the foregoing observations apply only to that section of the state which we have denominated the granite region, comprehending the midland counties, which lie between the low country on the east and the Blue Ridge on the west. The superficial covering of clay, sand and gravel, which stamps so peculiar a feature on the low country, is undoubtedly a deposit from water.

As great misapprehension exists abroad respecting the CLIMATE of North Carolina as respecting its Geology. The fact is, between the Atlantic Ocean and the summit of the Alleghany mountains, (which forms the western boundary of the State) there is found almost every vicissitude of climate, from the heat of Africa to the cold of Siberia. In regard to salubrity also a similar diversity prevails. Indeed nothing is more common than to find two situations within a few miles of each other, one of which being near some slow stream or stagnant water, is visited with periodical attacks of fever, while the other being situated among broken or hilly grounds, where the springs are pure, is as healthy as any part of the world.

In the SCENERY of North Carolina, there is not much to interest the traveller, except in the mountainous districts. The aspect of the middle section of the State, however, consisting as it does of hills and vallies, either improved by cultivation or still mantled with its primitive forests, would afford interesting prospects, were the country sufficiently cleared of its native growth to permit an unobstructed view of the landscape. But it is among the mountains that North Carolina can justly boast of her scenery, where all the pageantry of grottos and water falls and precipices, and clouds of the most fantastic shapes, is present to regale the lovers of the romantic, and where the eye may wander unconfined over the pure sublime of nature, unalloyed by any admixture of the humble works of art.

* For some of the foregoing suggestions I am indebted to Professor Andrews.

A friend at Paris, under date of October 5, writes the editors of the Mercantile as follows:—"Gen. Lafayette is at present in this city, and receives daily with his well known kindness, the children of his adopted country. Permit me to express to you my mortification, when I was informed yesterday, that no less than nine applications in a few days, had been made by Americans to the General for pecuniary assistance, and he gave them all they required. God forbid I should attempt to close the hand of charity, but every American feels an interest in whatever relates to Lafayette, and I hope some means may be devised to ascertain who and what they are, who thus call forth the ever ready benevolence of our Nation's Champion and Friend."

The New York papers mention a most shameful transaction, almost unequalled in the history of mobocracy. After the result of the election in Albany was known, a number of Mr. Clinton's political opponents collected together, and with a band of music proceeded in procession to the house of that gentleman, where, besides minor outrages, they attacked the door of the house with violence, shouting—"d—n Clinton!—hurra for Rochester!" after which they played the 'rouge's march' under the windows, and dispersed.

Anecdote.—During the late sharply contested electioneering campaign, in one of the neighboring counties, a very active man was about stirring up his friends to go to the polls—when at length he came across a broad featured descendant of Wouter Van Twiller, and desired to know, whether he would support Mr. Clinton. The substantial yeoman replied, with more zeal than intelligence, "No! dat I vont—He hash make te tam Titsh across me varm, un vont bay me a groat—un more den dat, py tunder un blitzen—he ish von tampt Glintonian.

Charleston, November 23.

The following singular case has been communicated to us for publication. The facts, as stated, may be relied upon.

On the 24th of October, 1826, about 12 o'clock at night, a Negro Girl belonging to a gentleman of this city, aged about 20 years, of a robust constitution and apparently in perfect health, in consequence of strong excitement, caused from setting up with a black corpse, in company with a large assemblage of colored people, who were singing, &c. as is common with these people on such occasions, fell into a lethargy;—from which she was not roused, notwithstanding the application of blisters, the shower bath of cold water, &c. until the 31st of same month, when she awoke, but could not separate her upper jaw from the lower one, until she was electrified, which was done on the 2d inst. when she ate food for the first time since being in this situation; but her tongue being contracted, she could not speak until the 2 st inst. when she spoke and said she felt quite well, and free from any kind of pain. She was four weeks in this state. During the first entire week, she was asleep, her pulse was good and natural, and her slumbers appeared calm and comfortable; but there was a total suspension of all animal functions, except perspiration.

We regret to learn that the statue of Washington executed by Chantry of London is not likely to meet the expectations of those gentlemen of Boston, who have subscribed for its completion—as a piece of sculpture it is said to be excellent—but it is not considered by those who have seen it even as a tolerable likeness of Washington.

A writer in the Boston Courier, from whose communication we derive the above information, recommends that the society in that city, which has caused the statue to be made, should endeavour to effect a sale of it in Europe, where the credit of the artist and the excellence of his work will probably ensure purchasers, and have a new one made that will suit the feelings of Americans better, by bearing the likeness of their country's father.—*U. The Post Office.—Thirty-six years ago (1790) there were only seventy-five Post Offices in the whole of the United States; their number now (1826) exceeds six thousand five hundred; the extent of the post roads was then less than two thousand miles, they now exceed ninety thousand. The total amount of postages did not exceed thirty-eight thousand dollars. They are now more than twelve hundred thousand dollars. The transportation of the mails then cost about twenty two thousand dollars annually; they now cost nearly eight hundred thousand dollars; and the compensation to Postmasters has increased from eight thousand to nearly four hundred thousand dollars.

Ever since the year 1800, when Thomas Jefferson was elected President, the increase of Post Offices and Mail routes has been very great; there were then less than one thousand post offices, only about twenty thousand miles of post roads, and the total amount of postages was nearly a million of dollars less than it is now. But since the close of the war in 1815, the post offices have been more than doubled, and so has the extent of post roads—there were only three thousand post offices and only forty-four thousand miles of post roads.

By the Steam-Boat Potomac, we received our usual supply of late Nortern papers, and those of Washington and Alexandria to Wednesday inclusive. From the National Intelligencer of the latest date, we learn that Mr. Rush, Secretary of the Treasury, has been quite ill for several days past with a severe bilious affection, but is now somewhat better. Mr. Secretary Barbour, who also had a severe attack, (believed to be the first illness in his whole life,) continues to gain health. Mr. Secretary Clay is absent on a visit to West Point, where he has a son at the Military Academy.

Mr. Jonathan Elliott, of Washington, has in the press, the first volume of a series of Debates, Resolutions and other Proceedings in Convention, in the states of Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia and North Carolina, on the adoption of the Federal constitution. It is expected that the work will extend to five volumes, large 8vo. The first volume is to be published soon after the opening of the next session of Congress.

Massachusetts State Prison.—The Boston Patriot states that, from the Annual Report of the Warden to the 30th September, 1826, it appears that the balance in favor of the earnings of the convicts, over and above the ordinary expenses of the prison, is $9,719 17 cents. Of this amount, $5,521 80, has been paid on account of two new stone sheds and of the new prison, leaving a balance in favor of the Prison, of $4,197 37.—The number of convicts, on the 30th September, was 313, who were thus employed:—105 stone-cutters, 21 lumpers, 35 cabinet-makers, 26 brush-makers, 6 whitesmiths and tinmen, 3 shoemakers, 1 copperplate-printer, 7 coopers, 10 weavers, 5 blacksmiths, 5 cobblers, 13 tailors, 8 oakum pickers, 9 cooks, 10 washers and waiters, 3 barbers, 26 on the new prison, and 8 on the new stone sheds; 10 were in the new hospital, and 2 confined in the cells; 50 of the convicts are black or coloured, and 56 are white foreigners, of which 15 are English, 16 Irish, 6 Scotch, and 4 French.

OBSERVER.

FAYETTEVILLE:

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, NOV. 29, 1826.

OUR OWN AFFAIRS.—The Subscribers to the Observer are respectfully reminded, that with the ensuing month will terminate the second year since it came into the hands of the present proprietor. A great proportion of its present patrons were such at that time. Some of these have failed to make a single payment towards their subscription in all that time, and most of them are indebted for the present year's subscription. This neglect has put the editor to serious inconvenience, and indeed is so disheartening as almost to produce a determination to relinquish a business in which he has expended instead of realizing money. It is a thankless business at best; but many of its discomforts might be obviated by a little attention on the part of subscribers.

The Editor hopes that it will be unnecessary to say more, than to request his distant patrons to remit, by mail or otherwise, the amount due, if any, for subscription or advertising. To save the expense of forwarding accounts, it is only necessary to state, that each subscriber who has taken the Observer during the whole period of its publication by the present editor, and made no payment, will owe $6 to the 1st January next, and those who have made one payment of $3, will owe him $3 to the same period. Advance payments, by which subscribers make a saving, will also be thankfully received.

Our Market has, for the last ten days, been uncommonly animated; within that time it is probable that 2 or 3000 bales of cotton have come in, and met with a ready sale at our quotations. The quantity of other articles has also been great. Dry goods and groceries are plenty and cheap.

Cotton Crop.—A commercial friend has favored us with the following statement, from New York, of the quantity of Cotton exported from the Southern States for the years ending October 1, 1825, and October 1, 1826.

	1825.	1826.
From New Orleans,	200,453 bales.	251,959 bales
Florida,	3,000	2,817
Alabama,	58,796	74,201
Georgia,	138,000	190,592
South Carolina,	97,000	111,978
N. Carolina & Virginia,	72,000	88,480
Total Crop,	569,249	720,027

Shewing an increase in the year 1826, of 150,778 bales. Besides, it is presumed that the very great transition from the high prices of 1825 to the comparatively low rates of 1826, has tended to keep the article back; and the quantity withheld from the market, in the interior, and in the hands of the Planters, in some of the cotton growing States, is probably much larger than it was last year.

North Carolina Notes.—In New York, 3 per cent. discount. Philadelphia, 3 per cent. Norfolk, 2 to 2½ per cent. Richmond, 2½ to 2¾ per cent. Petersburg, 2 pr cent. Charleston, 2 per cent.—at the latest dates.

N. C. Banks and Notes.—The last Georgia Journal has an article on this subject which it is proper should be noticed, if for no other object than to correct its errors, as we hope they are. It asserts that "The State Bank of North Carolina, (we are informed,) finding it convenient to transfer funds to the North during the winter season, sends an agent to Augusta with a large amount of its bills. These are expended in the purchase of Cotton, which is shipped to N. York and there sold. Thus the Bank obtains the command of funds in that city."

We have been requested to inquire, and we really think the credit of the Bank is interested in the answer, whether it be possible that the State Bank of North Carolina has stooped to engage in a petty traffic in cotton? We shall be glad if the Raleigh editors will enable us to contradict the report.

The Journal also states that N. C. Notes are at 4½ to 5 per cent. discount in Charleston. This is not the fact, nor has it been for some time past, if we are to rely upon the quotations in the Charleston papers, in which they are now stated at 2 per cent. discount.

The Superior Court for this county adjourned on Thursday last, without finally disposing of the cause between the State Bank and Raiford's securities. When that suit came up, a motion was made to remove it to another county, on the affidavit of the President of the Bank, that in his opinion a fair trial could not be had in this county, in consequence of the public prejudice in favor of the Defendants. The motion was successfully resisted by the Counsel for the Defendants, on the ground that the suit had already been removed twice, the law allowing no more. The Plaintiffs then, to avoid a trial in this county, submitted to a nonsuit, and immediately issued a new writ, which will bring the subject de novo before the next term in May.

A new trial was granted in the case of Wm. T. Parks, who had been convicted of perjury.

The National Road.—The Petersburg Republican has understood from Washington, that the government has "definitely determined" on the route for the great road from Washington to New Orleans, viz: the Eastern route, through the capitals of Virginia, N. Carolina, S. Carolina, Georgia, and Alabama. We should rejoice to know that this route had been fixed upon, but that cannot yet be the fact, because Congress alone possesses the power to do it. It may be, that the President and his Cabinet have determined to recommend this route to Congress, and we entertain hardly a doubt that they will do so; but the question must be "definitely determined" by Congress, and that will not be effected without a struggle between the several interests.

Congress will meet on Monday next, the 4th proximo. A few of the Southern members have passed through town on their way to Washington, viz: Messrs. King and Owen, of Alabama, and Mr. Forsyth, of Georgia.

West India Trade.—Friday next is the day fixed by the British Order in Council for a suspension of the trade of American vessels with the British West Indies; and the expectation of the repeal of the order has, so far as we yet know, been disappointed. It was said, however, that Mr. Gallatin set off for France to confer with Mr. Canning, (then on a visit to Paris,) immediately after the receipt of despatches from this country; and, as we know of no other subject of such immediate importance as to call for such a journey, we may hope that the President has directed Mr. G. to make the necessary arrangements to procure a revocation of the order. An unrestricted trade with the West Indies is of incalculable importance to the Southern section of the Union, who are already suffering sufficiently by the decline of their produce in the markets of Europe. We hope the next arrival will put an end to all anxiety on the subject.

The Gold Mines.—About a year since, a company was formed by some very respectable gentlemen in the western part of this State, for the purpose of procuring machinery to work the Gold Mines systematically. In pursuance of that object, they have obtained a Steam Engine, and all other necessary machinery, from Philadelphia, which they have erected at Chisholm's mine, on Beaver Dam creek, in Montgomery county, and which, we understand, has been in successful operation for more than a month past, completely answering the purpose for which it was designed. It will probably be carried from one mine to another, till the entire gold region shall have been explored. Perhaps one of the best results of this novel application of steam power will be, the dispersion of the hundreds of idle and dissipated loiterers about the mines, who, instead of enriching themselves, have added to the number of their vicious habits, and increased their poverty.

An esteemed correspondent writes, "That since the people are boasting of large Potatoes in Wake, it may not be amiss to state, that Mr. Robert Campbell, of Richmond County, [one of your subscribers,] has raised a sweet Potato, of the White Spanish kind, that weighed, when dug, 8¼ pounds. I think it will puzzle Wake county to produce a larger one this season. Mr. Campbell says that he has a number that weighed from 5 to 6 pounds."

Some very curious proceedings took place lately in the Legislature of New Jersey, at an election for Senator to Congress for six years from the 4th of March next. At a joint meeting of the two Houses for that purpose, Dr. Bateman, (presiding officer of the Council, or Senate) took the chair, but, being himself a candidate, he relinquished it as soon as it was determined to proceed to a balloting, and called his friend Dr. Ewing to his place. A question now arose whether Dr. Ewing did not lose his vote in consequence of his occupation of the chair. While this question was being discussed, one of the members, apprehending a close contest, and fearful of losing the vote of Dr. Ewing, ran in search of Dr. Batemen, who was soon found, informed of what was going on, and hastened back to resume his seat, in defiance of the open dissatisfaction of his opponents. Soon after, the meeting proceeded to ballot, and when Dr. B's name was called, he requested to be excused from voting. This was objected to; the question was put, and stood, 28 for excusing, 28 against it. Dr. Bateman having the casting vote, he decided against his own application, that he should not be excused.—His name was then called, and he voted for himself, and thus gained his election by his own vote, the votes being for Bateman 29, for Frelinghuysen 28.

The meeting then proceeded to elect a Senator till the 4th of March next, in place of Mr. McIlvaine, deceased, when precisely the same scene was again acted, and with a similar result. Dr. B. is said to be a friend to the Administration.

The Court of Oyer and Terminer in the city of New York, has again commenced the trial of Henry Eckford, Joseph G. Swift, Thomas Vermilyea, Wm. P. Rathbone, Mathew L. Davis, Mark Spencer, Geo. W. Browne, and Jacob Barker, for a conspiracy to cheat and cheating.

Mission to Panama.—Mr. Sergeant was to sail from Philadelphia on Saturday or Sunday last, in the sloop of war Hornet, to attend the Congress of American Nations in Mexico. The National Intelligencer states that Mr. Poinsett, Minister to Mexico, (a citizen of South Carolina,) has been chosen by the President to supply the place of the late Mr. Anderson, at the Congress.

It is whispered that Mr. Poinsett is instructed to negociate for the acquisition of Texas, or a part of it, from Mexico.—Indeed it is intimated, that a member of the Cabinet has written to a gentleman in Tennessee that Mr. P. had succeeded.—Rich. Enq.

A few days before Congress met in December last, the President decided to send ministers to Panama. A few days before Congress will assemble during the present year, the Minister is to be sent off. A curious coincidence in the periods of the events, as it relates to the meeting of Congress—and a considerable interval between the events themselves!—Rich. Enq.

A steam boat has been built at New York for the navigation of the Connecticut river, above Hartford. The water wheel is under the stern, and she draws but 21 inches water. It is thought that this vessel can proceed as far as Northampton, without difficulty, and it is not impossible that she may even ascend into the State of Vermont. [Just such a boat as we want on the Cape Fear.]

Wilmington, November 22.

Very warm weather for the space of two weeks, had occasioned a return of sickness to the town, and had been even more prejudicial to the health of the surrounding country, when we received the intelligence that the yellow fever had arrived at our port. A great and sudden change, however, which took place on Friday, relieved the healthy from the apprehension, and in a great measure, the invalid from the reality of sickness. We have since had severe white frosts and much ice.

The vessel in which the yellow fever was imported is the John & William, from Martinique. Two of the crew, Ephraim McMickle of Bristol, Maine, and Magners Morton of Nobleboro' in the same State, had died on their passage. Another, Samuel McMickle of Bristol, has died since arriving in this town. We are happy to state that the vessel has been thoroughly cleansed and that no vestige of the fever remains.—Recorder.

POETRY.

FROM THE NATIONAL GAZETTE.

My chosen and my fairest!
In sunshine and in gloom
Thy kindling eye shall cheer my path,
Thy gentle smile illume;
And hand in hand we'll onward walk,
Amid life's busy crowd,
While love shall cast a golden hue,
On every passing cloud.

I'll cherish thee my sweet one,
So fondly from all ill,
That time shall wing its silent way,
But leave with thee no chill;
And thus undimm'd, when years have flown,
Affection's star shall shine,
As when I breath'd my earliest vows,
And blushes spake thee mine.

My best loved, thus together,
We'll watch life's changing tide,
And gather all the fairest flowers,
That on the surface glide;
And grief shall be an idle name,
And sorrowing thoughts unknown,
For love in darkest hours can form
A bright world of its own.

From the Richmond Whig.

SYBILLINE ORACLES.

Extracted from an old edition of "Merlin's Prophecies, supposed to have been written about a thousand years ago; imprinted at London by John Hawkins, in the year 1530. For an account of this extremely valuable and scarce book, see Swift's works, vol. 3, p. 214, ed. 1766.

I. When the savage is meek and mild,
The frantic mother shall stab her child.

II. When the cock shall woo the dove,
Mother and child shall cease to love.

III. When men, like moles, work under ground,
The lion a virgin true shall wound.

IV. When the dove and cock the lion shall fight,
The lion shall crouch beneath their might.

V. When the cock shall guard the eagle's nest,
The stars shall rise all in the west.

VI. When ships above the clouds shall sail,
The lion's strength shall surely fail.

VII. When Neptune's back with stripes is red,
The sickly lion shall hide his head.

VIII. When seven and six shall make but one,
The lion's might shall be undone.

SOLUTION.

Verse 1st.—The settlement of America by a civilized nation is very clearly alluded to in the first line. The frantic mother is Britain—America the child.

Verse 2d.—The cock is France, the dove America—Columbia. Their union is the epocha when America shall cease to love Britain; for so I understand the prophecy, in which there is manifestly an equivoque: which is one of the most striking characteristics of the ancient oracles.

Verse 3d.—The siege of Yorktown, where approaches were carried on by working in the earth. In the second line there is another equivoque. We are told by Mr. Addison in his Spectator that a lion will not hurt a true maid: this at first seems contradicted by the prophecy, but it will be found, that at the epocha referred to, the virgin, or Virginia (as all North America was then called in Europe) shall wound the lion, viz. Britain, which shows the precise time when the oracle should be accomplished.

Verse 4th—Alludes to the alliance between France and America, before whose might Great Britain crouched.

Verse 5th—This certainly refers to the period when France (the cock) guarded the home of Americans (the eagle's nest) and assisted the States (the stars) to attain their independence—that is to rise in the western hemisphere.

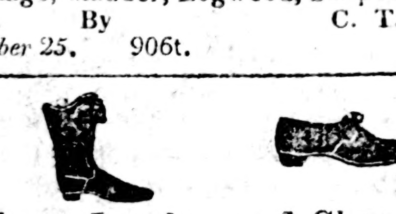

Verse 6th.—It is very remarkable that the properties of inflammable air by which balloons first traversed the upper regions, were then first discovered, and they are here evidently called ships.

Verse 7th—When America's navy covers the sea with red stripes, Britain will be humbled.

Verse 8th.—The thirteen States first confederated.

Fayetteville Academy.

THE Examination of the Students of this Institution will take place on the 22d inst., and the exercises recommence on the 10th July.

The Committee of Superintendance have the satisfaction to state, that the prospects of this Institution are as flattering at this time as they have been at any former period. The Rev. Mr. Hollister, a gentleman who bears the highest testimonials, both of his education and experience, has been engaged as the Principal of this Academy; he will take charge of the Classical Department, as well as exercise a general controul over the institution. He will be assisted by Mr. Gay, with whose excellent qualifications the Committee have had an opportunity of becoming acquainted, together with such other Tutors in the English Department, as may be found necessary. The Female Department will be under the direction of Mrs. Hollister, and will no doubt, be found to be one of the best Schools for young Ladies in the Southern States.

The advantage of having an Institution of this kind, where the manners are to be formed as well as the intellect improved, under the influence and example of a respectable and well regulated community, the uniform healthiness of this town, for several years past, and the peculiarly comfortable apartments, erected at considerable expense for the accommodation of the School, with the cheapness of tuition and board, altogether, warrant the Committee in recommending the Institution to the notice of the public, particularly to those of the low country. The central situation of Fayetteville, and the facilities furnished by the mails, affording opportunities of correspondence, almost every day in the year, with all parts of the country, is a consideration which will not be lightly esteemed by parents who may be under the necessity of sending their children abroad for their education. Boarding can be had in many of the respectable families in town, at a moderate price.

It may be well, likewise to state, that the conduct of youth sent to this Institution, particularly those from abroad, will be carefully observed, as well out of the School as within it, and a proper degree of attention will be paid to their habits, manners and morals, as well as their scholastic education.

JOHN MACRAE,
Secretary of the School Committee.
